HIPAA AGREEMENT

Privacy and Confidentiality

The Health Insurance Portability and Accountability Act of 1996 (HIPAA), is a federal law which, in part, protects the privacy of individually identifiable patient information and provides for the electronic and physical security of health and patient medical information, and simplifies billing and other electronic transactions through the use of standard transactions and code sets (billing codes). HIPAA applies to all "covered entities" such as hospitals, physicians and other providers and health plans as well as their employees and other members of the covered entities' workforce.

Privacy and security are addressed separately in HIPAA under two distinct rules, the Privacy Rule and the Security Rule.

The Privacy Rule sets the standards for how all protected health information should be controlled. Privacy standards define what information must be protected, who is authorized to access, use or disclose this information, what processes must be in place to control the access, use and disclosure of information, and to ensure patient privacy rights.

The Security Rule defines the standards that require covered entities to implement basic security safeguards to protect electronic protected health information (ePHI). Security is the ability to control access and protect electronic information from accidental or intentional disclosures to unauthorized persons and from alteration, destruction, or loss. The standards include administrative, technical, and physical safeguards designed to protect the confidentiality, integrity, and availability of ePHI.

PRIVACY RULE

Purpose of Privacy Rule

To protect and enhance the rights of consumers by providing them access to their health information and controlling the inappropriate use of that information;

Highlights of Privacy Rule

The Privacy Rule requires that access to protected health information (PHI), which includes electronic PHU (ePHI), by CHHS Board Members, professional employees, contractors be Based on the general principle of" need to know "and "minimum necessary," in which access is limited to the patient information needed to perform a job function.

The HIPPA Privacy Rule also accords certain rights to patients, such as: Right to request access to their own health records Right to request and amendment of information in their records Right to receive an accounting of disclosure of their information

Potential Consequences of Violating the Privacy Rule

The Privacy Rule imposes penalties for non-compliance and for breaches of privacy which range from $100 to $50,000 per violation, in addition to costs and attorney's fees, depending on the type of violation. Penalties include fine suptoamaximum of $1,500,000 per event potential for civillawsuits, the potential for misdemeanor charges and reporting the violation to licensing boards for individuals.

Under state and federal laws and regulations governing a patient's right to privacy, unlawful or unauthorized access to, or use or disclosure of, patient's confidential information may subject me to disciplinary action up to and including immediate termination from my employment/ professional relationship with IHHP.

I have read, understood and acknowledge all of the above STATEMENT OF PRIVACY RULE REGULATIONS AND IHHP's POLICY.
